

THE FOUR DIRECTIONS OF LEADERSHIP WHOLENESS

A Weekend of Nature-Based Personal & Leadership Development

June 4 - 7, 2020

Join us under the gaze of Pikes Peak (a.k.a. Tava or Sun Mountain) to experience the power of Nature to guide your life and leadership!

Step into the sacred lands of the Ute, cared for now with reverence by the sisters of Benet Hill Monastery. Walk the outdoor labyrinth embedded among the sweet butterscotch scent of the Ponderosa pines. Just minutes from the buzz of our modern life, the undulating forest floor offers its gifts of ground for reflection, Ute Medicine and Prayer Trees for wonder, and a sharp blue sky and the warmth of the sun for reconnecting with yourself.

This gathering focuses on the 4 Directions of Leadership framework, an approach to enhancing your unique blend of leadership strengths. Before arriving, you'll do a leadership assessment. Each day you'll receive practices, coaching & guided solo time for direct experience with the wisdom that only Nature can provide. And, you'll join other talented women who have said yes to what the Generative Council of the Center for Nature & Leadership offers by investing in their professional and personal growth to gain new perspectives, insight, and learning.

By the end of our time together, you'll:

- *Reflect on how you show up in your leadership, where some existing habits may be pulling you away from your highest effectiveness, and steps you can take to move into alignment with your values and goals;
- *Be inspired to develop and act on a self-designed personal growth plan that brings you closer to your desired future, and get regular feedback on your progress after you leave;
- *Learn nature-based leadership practices designed to enhance your presence and effectiveness;
- *Leave with a community of like-minded women to provide support and mentorship.

Act Now! Enrollment will be limited to twelve!
